PSYCHOLOGY 3551: Adolescence
(NOTE: Psychology 3551 does not count toward the Psychology Major advanced course requirement)

COURSE ARRANGEMENTS AND EXPECTED LEARNING OUTCOMES
Class sessions will encompass PowerPoint lecture presentations (with relevant study questions and occasional video or media clips), class discussion, and exams. Students should read pertinent textbook content (specified below) prior to attending the lectures. The lectures will emphasize and expand upon aspects of adolescence described in the textbook, and will use the audiovisual content to stimulate discussion of pertinent issues. Attendance will be recorded whenever feasible. As a TAG (Transfer Assurance Guidelines) course, Psychology 3551 is designed to meet the following expected learning outcomes; that is, students may learn to: “assess the biological, cognitive, environmental, and social factors that influence development throughout adolescence; evaluate current and past research in adolescence guided by theories within developmental psychology; apply developmental psychology principles to daily life throughout adolescence; detect myths and misconceptions regarding human development during adolescence; describe methodological approaches used to study development; and assess and critically analyze theories, research methodology and findings (outcomes), and applications developed by developmental psychologists and made available through textbooks, newspapers, professional and lay periodicals, and the internet throughout adolescence.”

All required reading assignments will be from Santrock’s Adolescence, 16th ed. (NY: McGraw-Hill, 2016; ISBN: 978-0-07-811718-3), available at the University book store and other locations (or available online). Also available is the instructor’s (Gibbs’s) 2014 book Moral development and reality: Beyond the theories of Kohlberg, Hoffman, and Haidt, 3rd ed. (New York: Oxford University Press, 2014; ISBN 978-0-19-997617-1). Moral development and reality is optional but may be helpful for those students wishing to gain background on the lectures pertaining to social and moral development in adolescence. There is no required paper assignment, although an optional book review can be done for extra credit.

DETERMINANTS OF GRADES FOR THE COURSE
Your grade for the course will be determined mainly by your performance on the two midterm examinations and the final examination. Each will generally account for one-third of your grade. The final examination will cover only post-midterm material. An upward minor-grade adjustment can be achieved upon satisfactory completion of an optional extra credit exercise (see below).

OPTIONAL EXTRA CREDIT EXERCISE
Those who choose to do the extra credit exercise (a book review), and who complete it appropriately, will receive an upward adjustment of their final letter grade. The adjustment will equal a minor grade increment (e.g., B+ to A-, B- to B, C to C+). All book reviews must be submitted by the final regularly scheduled class session (Tuesday, December 5). Appropriate completion means the accomplishment of a typed, double-spaced, 3-5 page review of a book (not book chapter or article) on adolescence. For possibilities, one might consult pertinent books among the textbook references. Instructor permission must be granted for reviewing any book with a less than explicit or full-fledged focus on adolescence. To determine library book availability, check online or call 292-3900. Keep in mind that a book review does not simply list a book’s contents; rather, it thoughtfully communicates the book’s central ideas.

DETAILS REGARDING EXAMS
The exams will be multiple-choice in format and will each consist of 70 items. The 80-minute class period should allow ample time for test completion. Be sure to bring a number 2 pencil with you on the day of each exam. The exams will reflect textbook as well as lecture content. Midterm 1 and 2 scores will be posted in Canvas as well as the classroom following the exam. Each exam will be preceded by a review session and the midterm exams will be followed by a feedback session. Of course, the instructor is required to report to the Committee on Academic Misconduct any instances of student academic misconduct wherever committed (for example, plagiarism or other dishonest practices in connection with examinations; see Code of Student Conduct http://studentlife.osu.edu/csc/). Regarding sexual misconduct/relationship violence: “Title IX makes it clear that violence and harassment based on sex and gender are Civil Rights offenses subject to the same kinds of accountability and the same kinds of support applied to offenses against other protected categories (e.g., race). If you or someone you know has been sexually harassed or assaulted, you may find the appropriate resources at http://titleix.osu.edu or by contacting the Ohio State Title IX Coordinator, Kellie Brennan, at titleix@osu.edu.” Students with disabilities certified by the Office of Student Life Disability Services (098 Baker Hall, 113 West 12th Avenue; http://www.slds.ohio-state.edu) will be appropriately accommodated, and should notify the instructor as soon as possible of their needs.
